

Brian D. Miller has joined the D.C. office of Rogers Joseph O'Donnell, P.C. (RJO) as a shareholder. Brian has a distinguished record of public service. As Inspector General of the GSA from 2005 until May 2014, Brian was highly regarded for his vigilance in prevention of public waste and corruption. Earlier, Brian held several notable positions at the Department of Justice, including a senior management role at the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Virginia, Special Counsel on Health Care Fraud/Senior Counsel to the Deputy Attorney General, and as an Assistant U.S. Attorney in the Eastern District. Most recently, Brian was a Managing Director of Navigant Consulting.

Brian brings to RJO a wealth of government experience and understanding of what motivates regulators and how officials at federal agencies think and act. Through his years of service, Brian has developed relationships with key regulators and Justice Department officials, and he has earned the respect of law enforcement officials. Coupled with his knowledge of the operations of the federal government – especially regulatory and enforcement agencies – Brian can apply his insight and subject area expertise to benefit clients in their dealings with IGs, DOJ, the GSA, and other officials. Combining expertise as a traditional government contracts lawyer with practice experience as both a federal prosecutor and a white collar defense lawyer, Brian is an excellent choice for sensitive compliance matters and can be trusted with complex procurement fraud allegations. For the same reasons, Brian can be relied upon for internal compliance reviews and investigations, will offer informed counsel in dealing with suspension and debarment officials, and can act as a compliance monitor.

Neil O'Donnell, firm founder, commented: "We see Brian as leveraging our breadth of subject matter expertise, across many areas of procurement law and regulation, enabling RJO to extend and enhance our abilities to assist clients with performance or compliance issues before the GSA and other federal agencies, and in other matters involving law enforcement and integrity in public contracting." Bob Metzger, who heads the firm's D.C. office, said: "Brian is a terrific hire. He adds to our litigation credentials and ability to handle integrity, compliance and procurement fraud matters – including cutting edge issues such as commercial item contracting and cybersecurity."
